The African World: Crisis in Race, Religion, and Culture

Dr. Molefi Kete Asante

Friday, Feb. 27
Reception: Storm Hall West Patio
4:00-5:15PM
Lecture: Storm Hall West, 011
5:30–8:00PM

Dr. Molefi Kete Asante is Professor and Chair of the Department of Africology at Temple University. Considered by his peers to be one of the most distinguished contemporary scholars, he has published 77 books. He became chair of the African American Studies Department (now Africology) at Temple University where he created the first Ph.D. Program in Africana Studies in 1987. Dr. Asante has directed more than 140 Ph.D. dissertations. He has written more than 550 articles and essays for journals, books and magazines and is the founder of the theory of Afrocentricity.

Thank you to our sponsors:

Educational Opportunity Program
Instructionally Related Activities
Grossmont College
Student Life and Leadership